Superintendent of Police Byrnes of New York city says that some of the most dangerous and desperate criminals look like clergymen.

The schools for trained nurses are now coming in for their shares in the estates of those who die and leave funds to worthy institutions. This shows that schools for trained nurses are getting to be recognized and highly respectable affairs.

It is a rather curious fact, remarks the New York Commercial advertiser, that Gladstone, Salisbury and Chamberlain has each a son in the British Parliament, and not one of them "seems to be worth shucks"

Judge Toft, one of the recently appointed Federal Circuit Court Justices, has directed that all witnesses undergoing examinations in his presence shall stand, and not sit, and attorneys are required to do so likewise. The rule has provoked much comment, states the New York Tribune. His reason for having the witness stand is that a hearing is thus expedited.

A London woman's club has decided that the first qualification for an ideal wife is that she should be womanly, kind, sympathetic, and, above all things, tolerant of the faults of others. Nothing is said about her ability to cook, the New York Commercial Advertiser is surprised to note. "This really seems as if woman were at last to be judged by her qualities of mind rather than by her knowledge of flour and ovens and frying pans."

It is only a few years ago that we were following the footsteps of Henry M. Stanley in his marvellous search for Dr. Livingtone. Today, Englishmen are building a railroad to Victoria Nyanza that will open the heart of Africa to the world, civilize its people and bring the remainder of mankind in closer contact with the "Dark Continent." The missionary station, schoolhouse and blacksmith shop go hand in hand with the locomotive, no matter what may be the part of the globe on which they secure a foothold.

The incident which shaped the professional career of the late Paul Dillingham, ex-Governor of Vermont, was cutting his foot with an axe while chopping trees, when he was about twenty-one years old. Although disabled only for a time, he had a slight limp all the rest of his life in consequence of this painful mishap. While recovering from the immediate effects of the blow he spent many hours in general reading in a lawyer's office, and this led to his looking into the law, and finally adopting it as his profession.

Some idea of England's grave responsibility in India may be gathered, suggests the New York Observer, from the latest reports of the population of that country and its rapid increase. In 1881 the population was 257,000,000; in 1891 it was 286,000,000, showing an increase in a single decade almost equal to that of the whole population of England and Wales. Of these, 207,000,000 are Hindus, 57,000,000 are Mohammedans, 7,000,000 are Buddhists, while as yet only 2,284,196 can be spoken of as in any sense Christians. The figures are appalling. The increase of population in ten years is equal to thirteen times the number of those who "can be spoken of as in any sense Christians."

A young lawyer of Boston, says the Post, was asked the other day why in the English courts a woman must remove her hat. He could not answer the question. But an old lawyer, to whom the matter was referred, recalled the opinion of Sir Edward Coke on the matter. It was at a murder trial where the prisoner was a woman, and appeared before the court with her head covered. Sir Edward Coke ordered the prisoner to remove her hat, and said: "A woman may be covered in church, but not when arranged in a court of justice." The accused tartly replied: "It seems singular that I may wear my hat in the presence of God but not in the presence of man." "It isn't strange at all," replied the judge, "for the reason that man, with his weak intellect, cannot discover the secrets which are known to God, and, therefore, in investigating truth, where human life is in peril and one is charged with taking life, the court should see all obstacles removed. Besides the countenance is often the index to the mind, and accordingly it is fitting that the hat should be removed and therewith the shadow which it casts upon your face." The hat of the prisoner was taken off, but she was allowed, for modesty's sake, to cover her hair with a kerchief.

Repayment.

Beneath the elm-trees' arching shade,
As gayly as the flowers arrayed,
A little maid was straying.
A boy, outside this paradise,
Looked in with longing, hungry eyes,
As if to join her playing.

At length she saw his earnest gaze,
While springing down the grassy ways.
"Poor boy, so sad and lonely,
Take this," she whispered, low and meek,
With lips close pressed against his cheek,
"For I have kisses only."

Years passed away. The child of eight
Became a maiden tall, sedate,
With lovers in a plenty.
Again she in the garden stood;
Beside her, in a happy mood,
Lingered a youth of twenty.

"Dear May," he said, with solemn face,
"I trust myself to your kind grace,
And humbly crave your pardon.
I must return without delay
A gift that you bestowed one day
On me in this same garden.

"I've treasured it for many years,
My ray of hope 'mid doubts and fears;
I hope you never missed it."
She turned her face in mute surprise
To his; the rogue with smiling eyes
Bent down and kissed it.

THE BLACK LACE DRESS.

BY AMY RANDOLPH.

"And you're not going to the dance, after all, Katie Carleton?"

Henrietta Lacy was sitting in the modest little third-story back room, which was all the home that Katie Carleton had; a square room, with one bulging window, looking out upon the roof, and the walls covered with a coarse, zigzag pattern of crimson on a pea-green ground, while the carpet, well worn in spots and carefully darned, was of a nondescript color and design—great sprawling leaves and scrolls bursting out in a tangled complexity which would have made a designer's head swim.

But Katie Carleton, humble little photograph-colorer though she was, was young and pretty, with yellow hair waving away from her low, square forehead, arched brows, and deep hazel eyes, while the confinement and monotony of city life had not yet stolen all the fresh roses from her cheeks.

For Katie Carleton, like many another, had left a comfortable, if not a luxurious, farm-house home, with the idea that fortunes were to be picked up in the city as readily as blackberries on a sunny stone wall. Poor girl! She had found out her mistake soon enough, yet she had too much pride to return, a useless burden to the honest old uncle and his six daughters, who made cheeses and raised poultry in the venerable precincts of Elderberry Farm. Nobody wanted a governess; her little poems were returned, labelled "Respectfully declined," from the newspaper offices; and the water-colored drawings, whereby she had expected to take the artistic world by storm, hung in the circulating library window until their margins were smoke-blackened and their bright colors hopelessly tarnished, without anyone ever taking the trouble to ask the price. And at last, just as Katie was beginning to wonder whether death by starvation was really such a painful end, some kindly soul told her of a chance to get employment from a great photograph establishment in the Bowery.

Hetta Lacy was employed there, too—not exactly in Katie's humble capacity, but as the smart young lady who received the customers, helped them with their bonnets and wraps, and answered general questions. She considered it quite a condescension on her part to patronize Katie; and Katie had too few friends to be specially particular about their quality. And now, as Miss Lacy sat opposite her, in a lilac poplin dress, and with an artificial bird in her hat, one could but think of a paroquet that had somehow fluttered down into a dove-cote.

"No," said Katie, "I am not going."

"I know why," said Henrietta, spitefully. "It's because Evan Merris doesn't approve of fancy balls."

"Mr. Merris ought to be a better judge of what is and what is not proper than a mere country girl like me," said Katie, mixing a little more ultramarine blue for the sash of a pudding-faced little boy with a cat in his arms.

"Oh, I dare say!" said Henrietta, tossing her head. "And you're really determined not to go."

"Yes, quite."

"Then perhaps you wouldn't mind lending me the black lace dress you pasted the gold stars on when you did mean to go. I find that the lower flounce is completely torn off my white tarlatan, and I really haven't time to plan any new costumes."

"You are quite welcome to it, Henrietta," said Miss Carleton, kindly.

"I can put on a little gold fringe and make a very decent 'Midnight' out of it," said Hetta, indifferently. "Only, Katie, I think you are a goose not to go!"

Katie did not argue the question—she only painted quietly on and Henrietta Lacy went away.

"Oh, Mr. Merris!" said she, radiantly, as, on ascending the steps of the photographic saloon, she met the handsome young foreman of the printing office overhead. "I've just come from Katie Carleton's. And you ought to see the lovely dress she has been preparing for the masquerade ball!"

"Indeed!" Evan Merris's brow darkened slightly. "I thought she had decided not to go."

"I don't know about that," said Miss Henrietta, artlessly; "I only know that she's got a beauty of a dress, black lace, all sprinkled over with gold stars!"

Mr. Merris passed on, and Henrietta entered the saloon, congratulating herself on her finesse.

"I've put a spoke in her wheel, I guess," said the young damsel to herself; "and serve her right for getting Evan Merris away from me, that had known him years before she ever showed her pink-and-white baby-face here. And I didn't tell anything but the truth, either! I did see the dress there, and she has been making it!"

Katie Carleton expected Evan Merris in vain that night. The little bow of fresh blue ribbon in her yellow hair was all in vain; the new ruffle at her throat and the spotlessly ironed white apron were donned to no purpose. She extinguished her little lamp at ten o'clock, and, creeping into her alcove-bed, cried herself to sleep, she did not exactly know why.

The next night was the night of the much talked-of masquerade ball. Evan Merris hated and dispised these miscellaneous gatherings from the bottom of his heart—and yet, just when carriage after carriage was driving up, and the crowd arriving, he chanced to be standing in the brilliantly lighted street, leaning against a lamp-post, and moodily watched the prettily attired figures flit by.

Suddenly he gave a start. There was the black lace dress, starred over with gold, floating across the pavement, worn by a slight, graceful figure, and leaving a faint odor of musk and patchouly in its pathway. But he did not see the triumphant flash of the veiled eyes, as for an instant they rested on his face.

"There she goes," he murmured to himself, as the diaphanous folds of black and gold disappeared under the decorated archway; "and there, beneath her feet, crash to ruins the air-castles that my silly brain has been building for the last three months!"

So he went on his way, determined to see or hear no more of pretty Katie Carleton, the yellow-haired girl who had somehow contrived to cast a glamour about his heart and brain decidedly prejudicial to the influence of Miss Henrietta Lacy.

But a man's resolves are made neither of gutta-percha nor adamant, and he could not help pausing instinctively in front of the tenement house in which Miss Carleton lived; and as he paused he saw, through the big, brightly lighted window of the grocery below, the slender figure of Katie herself, in a gray dress, like a little nun, buying the humble loaf of bread and ten-penny worth of tea which were to serve for her morrow morning's breakfast.

"It can't be possible!" said Evan Merris to himself. "No, it can't!"

But just at that moment Katie turned and he saw her whole face; a little sad, perhaps, but quietly self-contained and sweet. Involuntarily he walked in and held out his hand to her.

Kate dropped the loaf of bread in her embarrassment.

"Mr. Merris!"

"Miss Carleton!"

"How came you here?"

"I might, with better reason, ask how came you here? For I was certain fifteen minutes ago," he added, seeing her surprised and bewildered face, "that I saw you cross the pavement, opposite Hebe Hall, in a black lace dress covered with gilt stars, and enter the ball-room door."

"Oh, no," cried Katie. "I—I had long ago given up all idea of going; and Henrietta Lacy asked me for the loan of my dress, as she hadn't time to make up one for herself. It was Henrietta you saw, not me."

"Henrietta, eh?" repeated Evan Merris, slowly, as a certain light broke in upon his brain. I always suspected that girl was not quite straightforward in her dealings, and I'm sure of it now, Miss Carleton."

Then, after a pause, he asked:

"Are you disengaged this evening?"

"Quite."

"May I come up and sit with you?"

"I shall be delighted," answered simple Katie, flushing all over.

The next day Henrietta Lacy came around to Katie's room, with the black lace dress folded up in a flat paper parcel.

"I'm so much obliged to you, dear," said she. "I had such a charming evening."

"So did I," said Katie, who longed for some congenial ear into which to pour the story of her happiness. "Mr. Merris spent the evening here."

"Mr. Merris!"

"Yes. And, oh, Hetta, only think! He has asked me to be his wife, and we are to be married in February; and I don't know how it ever chanced that so much happiness should be in store for me."

Henrietta Lacy bit savagely at her nails, as she listened. So all that plotting and planning had been in vain, after all. And the magnet, Love, had attracted Evan Merris to the right and rue, after all.—[The Ledger.

Colors and the Eye of Man.

Science gives us many interesting details about what the human eye has been and what it may become. The most ancient written documents attest that in times most remote only two colors were known, black and red. A very long time elapsed before the eye could perceive yellow, and a still longer time before green could be distinguished. It is remarkable that in the most ancient languages the term used to designate yellow insensibly passed to the signification of green.

The Greeks had, according to the generally received opinion, the color faculty very highly developed, and yet authors of the highest repute tell us that in the time of Alexander the Great, the Greek painters knew but four colors, namely, white, black, red and yellow. The ancients had no words to designate the colors of blue and violet, therefore they always referred to them as gray and black. It is thus that the colors of the rainbow were only distinguished gradually; the great Aristotle knowing only four of them. It is a well-known fact that when the colors of the prism are photographed there remains outside the limit of the blue and the violet (in the spectrum) a distinct impression which our eyes do not recognize as a color.

Physiologists tell us that it is reasonable to suppose that as the color organ in the human species becomes highly developed, and even before the eye becomes what the opticians would consider "perfect," this outside band will resolve itself into a color perfectly discernible. Only one speculation remains: When the educated eye of the year 2500 has discerned and named this now indistinct color, will another shadowy band appear to be classified among the colors 500 or 1000 years later on?—[Philadelphia Press.

A Boy Colonist.

The colonial fever has seized all the German nation so thoroughly that even schoolboys are infected with it. John Waker, a boy of twelve, was seized with the fever and ran away from his home in the city of Bremen in August last. He travelled on foot southwestward, saw the cities along the Rhine and crossed the river going westward to Paris. From there he wandered south all the way through France, crossed the vast mountain range of the Pyrenees in the cold season, when the whole landscape is covered with ice and deep snow, and arrived in Barcelona in Spain toward New Year. The cold in the mountains had caused him so much suffering that he was rather afraid with his tattered clothing that failed to cover his nakedness, to continue his journey at random. He went to the German consul and made close inquires concerning the best road to go to Cameroon which is a German colony on the western coast of Africa, north of the British possessions. The queer inquiry regarding a road for walking across the desert of Sahara was too much for the consul. He examined the little tramp and afterward pretended that he would show him the road, and took him to the steamer bound for Hamburg in Germany. He gave him in custody to the captain, who took him back to the fatherland. John's parents had believed him dead and were overjoyed to have him back. He said he was sorry to be compelled to go to school again, but as soon as he had finished his studies he would most assuredly leave again for distant Cameroon.—[Chicago Herald.

The Wedding-Ring Finger.

There are facts connected with the ring finger, remarks an observant moralist, which render it in a peculiar manner an appropriate emblem of matrimonial union. It is the only finger where two principal nerves belong to two distinct trunks. The thumb is supplied with its principal nerves from the radial nerve, as are also the fore-finger, the middle finger and the thumb side of the third or ring finger, while the ulnar nerve furnishes the little finger and the other side of the third or ring finger, at the extremity of which the two nerves are joined in a real union. It thus seems as if it were intended by nature to be the matrimonial finger. That the side of the ring finger next to the little finger is connected with the ulnar nerve is frequently proved by a common accident, that of striking the elbow against any hard edge, when, if the nerve is touched, a thrilling sensation is felt in the little finger and on the same side of the ring finger, but not on the other side of it.—[New Orleans Picayune.

The "Toilette" of Paris.

It is not without a great outlay of money that Paris, France, keeps up the well deserved reputation of being the daintiest and cleanest of all great cities. The "toilette" of Paris costs annually considerably over $1,100,000. Part of this amount is devoted to the purchase and maintenance of spades, pickaxes, wheelbarrows, watercarts, disinfectants, sand, brooms, etc. The rest is used to pay the 2600 men and 600 women who every morning remove offal or mud. This small army of street cleaners is divided into 149 brigades, each of which is commanded by a so-called captain, just like soldiers would be.

Every man or woman has an appointed task; some wash the sidewalks, others attend to the gutters, others look after the areas or throw sand on the streets and boulevards, which twice a day are inspected by one of the street-cleaning corporation. This explains why the thoroughfares there are almost as well kept as the interior of a Flemish house, and also how it is that refuse or dirt is so seldom met with as is the case in other great capitals.—[New York Tribune.

The Apple Blossom Weevil.

The British Board of Agriculture is endeavoring to arouse the apple growers of England to imitate their French competitors and take combined action against the apple blossom weevil, which has done incredible damage to apple crops in recent years. The ravages of this minute insect are often erroneously attributed to the east wind or late frosts, and even when the true nature of evil is recognized it is useless for one cultivator to incur the trouble and expense to remove it if his neighbors allow it to increase and multiply in security all around. One weevil, it is said, will lay twenty eggs, placing one only in each bud of an apple blossom, there to be hatched and nourished upon the fruitful portion of the flower to the destruction of all hope of apples. In France apple growers in a village form an association, and, seizing an appropriate moment, make a combined raid on the invaders of all the trees in the parish. In one orchard of about eight acres, scores of thousands of weevils were shaken from the trees and destroyed, and a satisfactory crop of apples afterward was obtained.

Instinctive Criminality.

In a paper on instinctive criminality, Dr. S. A. K. Strahan holds that the criminal belongs to a decaying race, and is only found in families whose other members show signs of degradation; in fact, it is only one of the many signs of family decay. Besides being hereditary, criminality is interchangeable with other degenerate conditions, such as idiocy, epilepsy, suicide, insanity, scrofula, etc.; and it is a chance whether the insanity or drunkenness, say, of the parent, will appear as such in the child or be transmuted in transmission to one or other of the alternate degenerate conditions. The present system of treatment has proved a disastrous failure; short periods of punishment can have no effect, either curative or deterrent. Everything points in the direction of prolonged or indefinite confinement in industrial penitentiaries. — [Popular Science Monthly.

The Luxury of the Law.

Ten years ago two Pennsylvania farmers got into trouble about a little patch of land, the only valuable thing about which was a cherry tree. Finally one of them chopped the tree down and the other sued him for its value, which was assessed at $3.25. The case has been tried several times and a final judgment has just been rendered. The plaintiff won his suit and gets his $3.25, for which he has lawyers' fees to pay amounting to $325. Defendant has to pay his lawyer $240 and foot the costs, amounting to $987 more. So these farmers pay for their fun and the tree a total of $1552, to say nothing of lost time and harrowed feelings.—[Atlanta Constitution.

A Monster Eagle.

Buford Hall, Jr., the 12-year-old son of Mr. Buford Hall, killed an eagle last week on his father's farm. The bird was in a tree some distance away, when the little boy, who is an excellent shot, fired a charge of shot at it from a breech-loader, shooting it in the head. The bird measured six feet six inches from tip to tip. It was attracted to the place by the young lambs. The young hunter is very proud of his trophy, and brought it to town on Friday to have it stuffed and mounted.—[Georgetown (Ky.) Times.

Prolific Short-Horn.

William S. Wisdom, a farmer residing just across in Todd county, Kentucky, has a fine short-horn cow eight years old that in the way of being prolific has just completed a very remarkable record, having within the space of 12 months given birth to four well-formed and healthy calves, all of which are now living. With the exception of two weeks, she has given milk regularly all the time. —[Cincinnati Enquirer.

AN ISLAND LAID WASTE.

A Hurricane's Fatal and Destructive Work at Mauritius.

Enormous Damage to Buildings, Shipping and Standing Crops.

Baron de Worms, Parliamentary Secretary of the Colonial Office, read a telegram in the British House of Commons, London, fully confirming the news of the terrible disaster at Mauritius. The dispatch said that one-third of the capital city, Port Louis, was destroyed. Among the buildings wrecked were the Royal College and twenty-four churches. Many sugar mills in the country were completely demolished.

The special correspondent of the Times says that the loss of life in Mauritius is not less than 15,000.

In the city of Port Louis alone 600 persons were killed. In the various country districts at the time the dispatch was sent, 300 persons were known to have lost their lives. The latest official estimates were that 1200 persons were killed. It was thought that many of those who were injured would die.

The hospitals in Port Louis were filled to overflowing with the injured, and tents were erected on the hospital grounds to accommodate those whose injuries demanded instant attention. In Port Louis alone 1000 persons were injured. The Government, which is under the direction of Sir Charles Cameron Lees, has taken measures to relieve the distress that prevails in every direction. Thousands of people have lost their houses. Baron de Worms added that Lord Knutsford, the Colonial Secretary, had communicated the facts of the disaster to the Lord Mayor of London, and stated that the latter would at once open a fund for the benefit of the islanders.

Other advices from Mauritius are to the effect that the devastation caused by the hurricane was enormous. Business at Port Louis, the capital, and at the other towns on the island is still greatly interrupted. All the crops suffered more or less, and some of them are ruined. The hurricane was accompanied by one of the heaviest rainstorms in those latitudes.

When the storm broke, the scene defied description. Amid the roar of the gale could be heard the crashing of thunder that was appalling in its violence. The flashes of lightning were so awfully vivid that even those who have seen the electrical displays that sometimes occur in the tropics were frightened. The people were panic-stricken, and sought safety in their houses, many of them only to find death shortly afterward in the falling buildings. The wind gauges were blown to atoms, but those best qualified to judge say that the wind blew at the rate of 120 miles an hour. It was utterly impossible for a human being to stand against it. Many of those who lost their lives were killed by being lifted bodily from their feet and dashed against trees, walls and houses. The greater part of the fatalities were among the laboring classes, Africans, Hindoos, Chinese and Malagassys, who do much of the work in the plantations.

There was no loss of life among the British troops on the island, although a number of the soldiers were injured. The hospitals are unable to accommodate a tithe of the patients offered, and many hundreds of dwellings in town, village and country are giving refuge and such succor as they can to the crippled and wounded sufferers. The dead were buried as rapidly as possible, many of them being thrown together in a common grave, as it was feared that the corpses in that warm climate might cause a pestilence. In some places whole families were buried beneath the ruins of their houses.

Mauritius, or the Isle of France, is an island belonging to Great Britain, lying in the Indian Ocean, about 400 miles east of Madagascar, and 2327 miles from Cape of Good Hope. It is thirty-six miles long, and thirty-two miles wide, and has an area of 676 square miles. It is noted for its violent hurricanes, and has been the scene of many great disasters.

The island was first settled by the Dutch in 1644. They named it Mauritius in honor of Prince Maurice, but afterward abandoned it. Then the French took it and called it Isle de France.

The English captured the island in 1809. Slavery existed until 1833.

The island is a strategic point of importance to England with regard to her Indian possessions. It is surrounded by coral reefs which, on the leeward side, make fine protected harbors. The reefs are cut by eleven passes, through most of which vessels of large draught can enter. The island is very fertile. Indigo, cotton, sugar, and spices are grown successfully. Deer, wild hogs, goats and apes are common in the mountains.

The population is a little over 300,000, and is made up of various Asiatic, African, and European races. The English encouraged Indian immigration, and this element is large. The other great branch of the population, the liberated Africans and their descendants, regard themselves as superior to the Indians. Port Louis is the only town of importance. It has a convent, with a large school attached, a college supported in part by the Government, and a number of Government schools. Several newspapers are printed there. The Government is similar to that of other British colonies.

MURDER AVENGED.

Two Train Robbers Shot Dead by a Sheriff's Posse.

Two of the express robbers who held up the train at Monroe Junction, Fla., several mornings ago, and killed Messenger Saunders, have paid the penalty of their crime. They were killed at Buffalo Bluff Bridge, on the St. John River, five miles south of Palatka.

A Palatka special says: "At about half-past twelve o'clock a hatless colored man staggered into the Court House and said, 'Come to Buffalo Bluff—robbers!'"

Deputy Sheriff Dyson aroused his posse and a special train left with them. George Wurtz and T. H. Wigg, the guard placed by the Sheriff's posse at Buffalo Bluff bridge, at half-past eleven A. M. saw three men coming from the south on the railroad track. As the first passed three feet ahead of the others the guards called "Hands up!" and the first one obeyed. The second and third drew their revolvers, and the guards knew that the desperate robbers were facing them.

The firing was begun by the robbers and a bullet grazed Wigg. Wurtz fired his shotgun loaded with buckshot and William, one of the robbers, fell. The man in advance then ran toward Palatka, the other man backward and was shot in the leg by Wurtz.

An engine load of young men composed the "special," and among them were Dr. Benjamin E. Morgan and Mr. Willard, of the express company. The big man of the robbers had taken to the swamp. They pursued him and suddenly a ball ripped through Dr. Morgan's vest. He saw the robber behind a fallen tree and fired a shotgun loaded with buckshot and Saunders's murderer had met his doom.

A FAMILY LYNCHING.

The Lynchee Worked for the Lyncher and Helped Him Do the Job.

An extraordinary murder and lynching occurred at Bastrop, La., the other day. One man committed the murder and one man did the lynching, with the assistance of the murderer.

Schambliss Brigham, manager for Colonel George C. Phillips, who owns a plantation on Island de Siard, while in the field was shot dead from ambush by an old colored man. The murderer then walked to the plantation residence, summoned Colonel Phillips and told him that he had killed Brigham and wanted to be hanged for it. Colonel Phillips put a rope around the man's neck and he was soon swinging in a death struggle from the limb of a tree. No motive is assigned for the murder, and it is thought that the murderer was insane.

FIFTY-SECOND CONGRESS.

In the Senate.

100TH DAY.—The River and Harbor bill passed without division after having been under consideration about five hours altogether——Mr. Quay introduced a bill appropriating $25,000 for a survey for the proposed ship canal from Philadelphia across New Jersey to New York Bay.

101ST DAY.—The Senate discussed all day, without taking final action thereon, the bill introduced in response to the suggestion of the President's annual message, to punish in United States courts offences committed against the treaty rights of aliens——At the request of Mr. Butler, the Senate bill appropriating $50,000 for an equestrian statue of General Francis Marion in Columbia, S. C., was passed——Bills were also passed appropriating $15,000 for the introduction of reindeer into Alaska; referring the claim of the Citizens' Bank of New Orleans to the Court of Claims; providing for a commission to enquire into the distribution of mails in large cities by pneumatic tubes; appropriating $15,000 for a painting of Abraham Lincoln, and appropriating $20,000 for the erection of a statue of the late Robert Dale Owen of Indiana, to be placed in the grounds of the Smithsonian Institution.

102D DAY.—The bill to provide for the punishment of violators of treaty rights of aliens was further discussed——An amendment appropriating $40,000 was proposed to the Agricultural Appropriation bill to continue experiments in the production of rainfall by means of explosives——The Senate bill to transfer the revenue cutter service to the Navy Department was laid aside without action——Mr. Pettigrew reported a joint resolution directing the President to proclaim a general holiday commemorating the 400th anniversary of the discovery of America on October 12, 1892. Place on the calendar.

103D DAY.—Mr. Morgan's silver resolution was discussed at length, Mr. Sherman making the principal speech

In the House.

114TH DAY.—Consideration of the Sundry Civil Appropriation bill was continued——Mr. Cockran introduced the Corbin Steamship Registry bill introduced in the Senate by Mr. Chandler.

115TH DAY.—The Sundry Civil bill was again considered, ten pages being covered. Almost the entire session was occupied in discussing an amendment offered by Mr. Forney, which was adopted, ninety-six to ninety-three, providing that all pension money received by inmates of National Soldiers' Home in excess of $5 per month should be deducted for maintaining the homes, except where the disabled soldiers have a wife, dependent parent or a minor child. Then the excess should be sent to such dependent by the managers.

116TH DAY.—This being District day, the Sundry Civil bill was laid aside and a number of local bills were passed——Mr. De Armond introduced a bill authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to assess annually an income tax upon all incomes of persons and corporations in excess of $1000, sufficient to meet the payment of pensions.

117TH DAY.—Consideration of the Sundry Civil bill was continued——Mr. Stewart reported back the River and Harbor Appropriation bill with the Senate amendments thereto, with the recommendation that the Senate amendments be non-concurred in. Messrs. Holman and Bynum, of Indiana, objected, and the bill was referred to the Committee of the Whole.

118TH DAY.—The House in Committee of the Whole devoted more than six hours to the two pages of the Sundry Civil bill, which contains the paragraphs carrying appropriations to the amount of $412,000 for the World's Fair——Much disorder was caused by references of Mr. Johnson, of Indiana, to intimidation of voters in the South.

SNOW IN MAY.

New England and a Portion of New York Experience a Winter Storm.

Snow commenced falling at six o'clock in the morning along the northern division of the Boston and Maine Railroad, commencing at White River Junction, Vt., and continuing as far south as North Boscawen, N. H. In many towns four inches covered the freshly opened leaves and flowers.

The south bound freight train from Woodsville came into Franklin at half-past nine covered with three inches of snow. The hills of Franklin and North Boscawen were white with snow, through which green grass five inches high overtopped, making a novel spectacle to the passengers of the morning southward train, upon which the snow still fell as far south as Penacook, below which it lost itself in a pouring rain at Concord. It is learned that considerable damage has been done to the cherry and apple crop in Northern New Hampshire.

Three inches of snow fell in New Hampshire at Dublin and six inches at Chesterfield. At Hanover five inches of snow fell.

It has snowed hard all through the valley at West Randolph, Vt. It is not thought that any damage will be done to growing crops. At Montpelier a half inch of snow fell.

Four inches of snow fell in New York State at North Creek, Warren County, and at Johnsburg snow covered the grass. The mountains near Warrensburg were covered two inches deep. There was a severe flurry of snow in the Catskill Mountains, the ground in many places being completely covered.

The fields in the eastern part of Dutchess County, New York, were covered with an inch of snow. The storm was the heaviest at Mount Riga and through the Harlem Valley.

SIX PERSONS DROWNED.

A Waterspout Bursts Over an Ohio Village and a Dam Breaks.

A waterspout burst over Kinsman, a small village twelve miles northeast of Niles, Ohio, on the Pymatuning River, drowning six persons and destroying buildings, stock and crops.

The water fell in torrents from 4 o'clock until a few minutes after 6, and the small river overflowed its banks. The farmers did not flee, thinking there was no danger, and all would have been safe had not a dam about two miles above the village broken without warning.

J. B. Robin's house was on the brink of the river. He and his wife and two children were eating breakfast when the flood came. It is presumed that they started to flee, but too late. K. Stewart and son were in their barn, which was carried away. Their house withstood the torrent and Mrs. Stewart witnessed the drowning of her husband and son. J. D. Campbell and wife were carried down stream but lodged on an abutment of a bridge and were rescued.

The bodies of the six drowned were found in a large pile of driftwood which reached nearly across the river. Many horses and cattle were swept away and the loss is estimated at $30,000.

DENMARK REJOICING.

Golden Wedding Celebration of King Christian and Queen Louise.

The celebration of the golden wedding of the King and Queen of Denmark began at Copenhagen when the members of the royal family attended Holy Communion at the palace of Amalienborg. The Empress of Russia, who arrived that day with the Czar, has procured a unique and splendid present for her father and mother. It consists of a team of six horses, perfectly white and of the rarest breeds. Besides this gift of the Czarina, the ruling families of Russia, England and Greece will make a magnificent joint present to the King and Queen of Denmark, consisting of a group of sculpture by the Danish artist Husselrus, and will later on be placed in one of the public squares of Copenhagen.

King Christian extended a hearty greeting to the Czar on his arrival at the palace. The King looks remarkably vigorous, although seventy-four years of age. Queen Louise is also in good health. The Prince and Princess of Wales, accompanied by Prince George and the Princesses Victoria and Maud, arrived and were received with marked tokens of affection by the royal couple.

THE FLOOD CALAMITY.

Greatest Desolation Ever Seen in the South and West.

Hundreds of Lives Lost and Millions of Property Destroyed.

From the very source of the Father of Waters down to the Louisiana delta the story is one of desolation. Farms ruined, houses swept away, live stock drowned, railroads idle, human lives in danger—such is the history of the big flood. Beginning at St. Cloud, north of Minneapolis, following the Mississippi down to Keokuk, Iowa, where the great Egyptian levee has yielded, flooding thousands of acres of the richest farm lands on the continent; thence in succession passing the cities of Quincy and Alton, in Illinois, where the work of the wind and water has been disastrous, the first great stage of the desolate journey ends at St. Louis, Mo. It is impossible to make an estimate of the damage to property in that city and vicinity, except to say that millions will express it, and that the loss embraces untold acres of growing crops destroyed, the wreck of several villages, injury to factories, the stoppage of trains, and the demoralization of business. Devastation hovers over a big and prosperous manufacturing district. Already the losses and damages turn over $1,000,000, and hundreds of men are in forced idleness.

Merely to name towns and villages in Missouri and Illinois that have suffered from the inundation, would make a list of appalling length. The truth is that the destruction is so widespread and overwhelming in its character, as to be difficult not only of description, but of realization.

On the Missouri, too, and its tributaries, the waters are abroad to a greater extent than ever before known. Throughout the Dakotas farms are under water, bridges have been carried away and railroad tracks undermined. The horror at Sioux City, Iowa, is still engaging attention, and the full story of the deluge has not yet been told. Even yet hundreds of people are closely following the receding floods, searching for their ruined homes and missing relatives. Weeks and perhaps months will be required to repair the havoc caused by the flood, and it will probably never be known exactly how many perished in the torrent. The loss by water even when the buildings were not carried away, was very large. Everything is soaked or ruined, or smashed by the waves or by the timbers hurled along by the current.

Down through Nebraska the Missouri and its tributaries are on the rampage. The Platte is especially turbulent, and all along its course through the State until it empties into Big Muddy at Plattsmouth it has left desolation on either side.

At Kansas City the Missouri River is higher than at any time since 1844. The town of Harlem is left without a soul of its populace, and many houses have been carried from their foundations.

A dispatch from St. Louis, Mo., says: Ten thousand people along the banks of the Mississippi have been rendered homeless by the ravages of the flood between this city and Cairo, Ill. In some parts the river ranges from ten to twenty miles in width. The river runs are sweeping away homes, drowning stock and submerging bottom lands. Five hundred thousand acres of growing crops have been destroyed. As the water begins to go down an estimate is being made of the actual damage done, and it is believed that half a million will not cover it. There are now in Harlem, Argentine, Armourdale and West Kansas over 1000 houses which have been deserted. It is impossible to make more than a rough estimate, but it is believed that the damage, actual and resultant, will amount to fully $5,000,000 in this immediate vicinity. In the flooded district probably 1500 square miles are submerged to an extent which renders it impossible for the farmers to raise crops. At least 15,000 persons have been thrown out of employment.

The following Louisiana parishes are affected by crevasse water: East Carroll, Madison, Tensas, Concordia, Morehouse, Richland, Caldwell, Catahoula, St. Charles, St. John, Plaquemines, Assumption, La Fourche, Caddo and Bossier. The largest crevasses now running are two on the Lafourche bayou and two on the Mississippi proper.

A telegram from Shreveport, La., says: The whole country above here, with few exceptions, is one sheet of water, and the flood sufferers have taken refuge in levees, barns and gin-houses, from which they are awaiting succor. Despatches have been received reporting a big rise at Garland City, and advising the committee at Benton to spare no pains to hold the levees. At 3.30 o'clock in the morning the Don Nicholson levee on the Bossier side, a few miles below this city, gave away at a point where no danger was anticipated. The guards were seated in a store near by, and the store and contents were carried away.

Fifty armed citizens cut the levee at Ottumwa to save their property. The cutting was calculated to injure the property of the Water Company, and the company appealed to the City Marshal, but he was powerless. The Water Company's superintendent attempted to stop the men, but he withdrew when a revolver was levelled at his head. A dike was soon opened in three places, allowing the water to escape.

The Secretary of War has authorized the Chief of Engineers to use Government boats upon all Western rivers to save human life where residents of the flooded districts are in danger.

Governor Boies, of Iowa, after investigating the flooded districts resolved to issue a proclamation inviting the people of Iowa and the country generally to contribute for the relief of the destitute people. The proclamation will state that $200,000 is needed for this purpose.

A telegram from Castoria, Ark., stated that 1500 men, women and children were water bound there and asked that a boat be sent to their rescue.

The destitution among the flood sufferers, white as well as colored, between Little Rock, Ark., and the mouth of the Arkansas River, is appalling. Pine Bluff and its vicinity is covered with thousands of refugees. The cotton crop all along the river is totally destroyed, and it is hard to tell on what the farmers will live this summer. The Government boat C. B. Reece supplied 1500 half-famished people on seventeen different landings with provisions furnished by the citizens of Little Rock. Hundreds of people were taken up along the trip, and put off on dry places. At Eagle's Landing 120 people were found living in three houses. Two men were seen drowning by the crew, and four were rescued from housetops, where they for hours found refuge. A flotilla of Government boats is continually on the river bringing succor to the helpless victims of the flood.

The entire Illinois Valley is desolate. Farms that are usually being worked at this time of the year are now under several feet of water. The farmers have abandoned the hope of being able to get a crop of corn in this year, as the season will be too late. It will take three or four weeks of the most favorable weather to get the water off the farms, and the ground will be too wet to work.

The American Red Cross Association has decided to receive no more relief for distribution in Russia. They recommend to the generous people who wish to give that they send all relief direct to the destitute cities and towns in the flooded districts of the West and South of our own country.

VOLUME TWENTY-FOUR.

Last week the NORTH CAROLINIAN was twenty-three years old. And what eventful years they have been in the history of Elizabeth City! On looking back to 1869, what changes have taken place! How many who were the leading "citizens of the hamlet" have passed away, leaving as the active forces and factors of to-day those who were then either babies on the block of playdom or young fellows on the hither verge of care and work, thinking but little and caring nothing concerning the all-important issues of the moment. But during these years the hopes and ambitions of those who, with the ever sanguine editor of the CAROLINIAN, had faith in the POSSIBILITIES of the Town, have crystalized into living realities. From a small village it has grown up to a live, busy and prosperous City, with the environments of modern and advanced civilization.

The CAROLINIAN, from its very first issue twenty-three years ago, visionary optimist as it was thought to be, contended that this development was possible, and that the growth would ultimately come, and it has urged, with all the ability it could command, the utilizing of the agencies, and aided, with unflaging earnestness, in promoting the movements which culminated in the results now causing every right-feeling citizen's bosom to swell with pride.

With this issue the CAROLINIAN enters upon its Twenty-fourth Volume, and it will continue under the same editorial control and business management that has been at the helm from the beginning. It will take no step backward, but keep on advocating what it honestly believes to be for the best interest of all.

Judging from the past, should the CAROLINIAN live another twenty-three years, what is there the imagination can conceive that solid fate and stern reality are not likely to materialize for Elizabeth City? In the words of the poet:

> We are living, we are dwelling
> In a grand and awful time,
> In an age on ages telling—
> To be living is sublime.

If to be living is simply sublime, what must it be to be doing! And this is the gospel the CAROLINIAN preaches —to WORK!

THE ISSUES OF 1892.

The Republican party in the approaching National campaign has a perfectly plain path before it. There are no abrupt corners to turn, no difficult ditches to leap, but a smooth, straight highway upon which to magnificently march to the conquest of every foe. There are no disturbing involutions and compromising contradictions of either principles or policies to explain or adjust.

In the platform of 1888 the Republican party declared for Protection, Reciprocity, Honest Money, a Free Ballot, for maintaining the National Honor and for Clean, Progressive Government. These pledges have been faithfully fulfilled, and now, upon the threshold of another National election, the party can appeal to the intelligence and patriotism of the country for an endorsement of its administrative and legislative course without hesitation or apprehension. The issues of 1892 are clearly defined.

Protection, Reciprocity, Honest Money and Fair Elections are issues which powerfully appeal to the patriotic impulses of the people. There is a moral force behind them which recalls the early days of the Republic. They are consistent and coherent. These principles are the logical outgrowth of Republican traditions and National experience. They link as with "hooks of steel" the Republicanism of the present with the Republicanism of the past. The entire record has been one of simplicity, sincerity and sagacity.

Protection transplants European industries to the United States; Free Trade transplants American industries to Europe. Further comment on the reasons the McKinley bill is looked upon with disfavor by European nations seems quite unnecessary

The most effective, pervasive and persuasive stump orator is General Prosperity. General Prosperity will be on hand this fall to deliver a strong speech in favor of Protection in every hamlet in the Union.

It is not the fault of Thomas Jefferson that Democrats invoke his name. He never by word or deed did anything to justify such conduct on the part of the Free Trade party

That McKinley tariff law is making converts every day for the Republican ticket, while the Democratic House is demonstrating Democratic incapacity.

A frightful cyclone passed through the towns of Wellington, Harper and Anthony, Kansas, on Friday, doing much damage and killing many people.

THE PEOPLES' PARTY.

The managers of the "Peoples' Party" of this State have issued an address and organized. A chairman has been appointed for each Congressional District who is authorized to call a Convention in his district on or before Thursday, June 16th, 1892, for the purpose of electing four delegates and alternates to represent the Peoples' party in the Omaha Convention to meet Saturday, July 2d, 1892 and to nominate a candidate for Congress where desirable. A mass meeting in each county is to be held in each county on Saturday, June 11th, 1892, to elect delegates to the Congressional Convention. In case there is no committee appointed for any county, the friends of reform may call said mass meeting. Each county mass meeting is expected to determine for itself whether it will put a county ticket in the field.

The Chairman of the First District is M. G. Gregory, of Okisko, Pasquotank county, and the District Convention is to be held at Elizabeth City.

THE SOUTHWESTERN FLOODS.

To grasp the vastness of the great Southwestern floods and the damages wrought by them one need but read the statement telegraphed that in the Arkansas Valley 50,000 acres of land are under water and crops which took 40,000 hands to plant, have been destroyed. It is estimated that between Memphis and Cairo 700,000 acres of farm land are submerged. The amount of cotton land under water is 200,000 acres, 300,000 of corn are said to be destroyed and 200,000 acres of wheat ruined.

THE FIGHT IS ON.

The fight between the two wings of the Democratic party in this State is on. It is a contest on the part of the Bourbon wing to continue to rule, and on the part of the other to throw off the yoke borne so long. The struggle of the one is to retain power as they have for years, by force and fraud, and of the other to recover rights of which they have been deprived and to better their condition. If the result is a fair and honest count at the polls, Republicans will not complain. So the CAROLINIAN says, Let the fight go on!

EMPHATICALLY NO!

Do the people of the United States favor a party or policy that extend American markets abroad, or are they prepared to restore to power a combination of tariff destructionists bent on breaking down the bulwarks which protects American labor and the great home market of domestic producers and manufacturers?

That very good man and ardent Democrat, Henry Watterson, still has his bagpipe keyed to an awful note of woe, in the discussion of the Democratic political situation. If he is fain to indulge in Jeremaids now his condition in six months will be one that will not leave a dry eye in his party.

Congressman Cheatham made a very sensible speech in the House in favor of appropriating $100,000 to collect statistics showing the progress of the colored race during the past thirty years. The Washington Post refers to it in very high terms.

Senator Hill has found out that it takes something more than a declaration that "I am a Democrat" to make a man President of the United States or even the candidate of his party for that office.

"Retrenchment and reform" is no longer the Democratic war-cry. The present Congress is spending more than its predecessor, the 'billion-dollar" Congress.

American tin plate is now being manufactured in the Democratic city of Baltimore, and the Bourbons of that vicinity are thus forcibly reminded that the McKinley law is both wise and beneficent.

Incidently it may not be improper to remark that no man is getting more real solid injoyment out of the proceedings of the Fifty-first House than ex-Speaker Thomas Brackett Reed.

The Republican sentiment of the country upholds the splendid administration of President Harrison, and wants four years more of it.

The Charleston "News and Courier," a veteran exponent of Democracy, speaks of Tammany Hall as the most corrupt political organization in the country.

There appears to be a general desire on the part of the Democratic newspapers that President Harrison shall not be renominated,

The National Republican Convention meets next Tuesday. Two weeks later the Democratic kilkenny cats will have it out at Chicago.

"We will not be able," wails Mr. Bailey of Texas, "to talk about the Billion-Dollar Congress on the stump this Fall."

The "big hat" is still the favorite in the political betting.

General Eppa Hunton has been appointed United States Senator from Virginia in place of the late John S. Barbour.

The American pig is now rooting around in Spain. Reciprocity introduced him.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

[From our Regular Correspondent.]

WASHINGTON, May 28, 1892

Secretary Elkins made the most important political statement of the week when he said that Secretary Blaine had repeatedly told the President and himself, since he wrote the letter to chairman Clarkson, that he would not accept the nomination if it was tendered him. Chairman Clarkson, to whom the statement was made still says that, although he has not heard directly from Mr. Blaine since he received his letter declining to become a candidate for the nomination he has reasons of his own for believing that Mr Blaine would not refuse the nomination if it should be made by such an overwhelming majority as to indicate that the party believed his nomination necessary to republican success. It is noticeable and is certainly an indication of success whoever is nominated at Minneapolis, that the best of feeling exists between those who wish to nominate Mr. Blaine and those who think the President entitled to the nomination.

The presence of so many prominent republicans has filled Washington with political rumors of all sorts one of the most interesting of which is, that one of the objects of Secretary Blaine's visit to New York this week, was to get Gen. Horace Porter, who has recently added fresh laurels to his fame by infusing new life into the Grant monument association and making it certain that the money to build the monument will be in sight by Memorial Day, to agree to present the name of the President to the National convention. That Mr. Blaine personally desires the President to be nominated is certain, and it would be just such a thing as only such a big hearted man as Mr. Blaine could do to ask Gen. Porter to make the nominating speech

The majority of the democratic members of the House found the pressure too great for them to stand so they voted in a democratic caucus to shelve the anti-option bill and give the appropriation bills the right of way in the House, notwithstanding the protest of Mr Hatch, chairman of the committee on Agriculture, who spoke of the almost unanimous desire among the farmers for the passage of the anti-option bill. Mr. Hatch and other supporters of the bill threaten to filibuster for the purpose of getting it before the House, but it is not thought that they will dare to try to upset the decree of a party caucus.

Representative Henderson of Iowa, made a short but very strong speech in favor of an amendment to the Sundry Civil appropriation bill offered by Mr Houk, of Ohio, but, ruled out on a point of order raised by Mr Holman, appropriating $100,000 to pay for collecting and publishing statistics showing the industrial advance of the colored citizens from Jan. 1, '63 to Jan, 1, '93. He said that the colored people numbered about one-eighth of our population, and that the evidence taken by the special committee, which investigated the World's Fair, showed that these 8,000,000 had been given not a single representative on any of the various boards connected with the management of the Exposition. He said it was a shame which he proclaimed to the American Congress with indignation.

Facts of Protection.

Congressman Dalzell.

The protective system recognizes the fact that the conditions of American life differ in toto cœlo from the conditions that prevail anywhere else. It recognizes the fact that wages are higher here than elsewhere. I do not care whether the system raised them in the first instance or did not raise them. I care only for the fact. It recognizes the fact that Americans in the mass, whether on the farm or in the shop, want to live better, dress better and do better than the masses elsewhere. It counts the schoolhouse and school books, some pictures and other books as amongst the necessaries of American life. It recognizes the fact that alone of all men on God's footstool the American has inherited, as the price of blood, the right to call himself the equal of a king; and it recognizes, therefore, that there is an American manhood and an American womanhood, thank God, worthy of protection, cultivation and preservation.

The American Home,

President Benjamin Harrison.

The American home is the one thing we cannot afford to lose out of the Americaa life The American home, where the father abides in the respect, and the mother in the deep love of the children that sit about the fireside; where all that makes us good is taught, and the first rudiments of obedience to law, of orderly relations, one to another, are put into the young minds That which distinguishes us from other nations whose political experience and history have been full of strife and discord, is the American home, where one wife sits in single uncrowned glory.

A Democratic Committeeman Resigns.

RALEIGH, N. C., May 19, '92.

Mr. E. Chambers Smith, Raleigh, N. C:

SIR:—Having received an appointment as a member of the Democratic Executive Committee of the 4th Congressional District, it is due you and myself to say that I am forced by conscientious convictions of duty to respectfully decline the proffered honor, as I can no longer affiliate with the Democratic party.

Respectfully,

J. C. NEAL.

W. B. Pollard, of Winston, has been appointed Chief Marshal of the State Fair.

The Democratic State Convention.

Progressive Farmer.

We are going to have a lot of fun and of the richest kind. It will be funny to hear men condemn the St Louis platform who fought for it and stood by it; and some of them elected on it, during the year 1890 But it will be a perfect circus to see the fellows who abused the Ocala platform from December, 1890 to the 18th of the present month, and every man who stood by it, now standing before the people to defend it Prepare for fun But the funniest thing of all will be to hear these old tricksters try to convince the people that they are honest in their professions Won't they have a time improving to the people that we can get national legislative reforms through the medium of a state platform? Never in the history of this or any other state has there been such bold attempt at duplicity and deception, Never has there been such a state platform adopted in all the history of the world. A platform with nine planks—every one of which belongs only to national affairs, and not one of which can ever be enacted into law by the State and only one resolution relating to state matters. A national platform adopted by a state convention and one which the party has persistently denounced and utterly ignoring state matters.

LITERARY NOTICES.

Mr Michael Davitt opens the June ECLECTIC with a swift glance at "The Canadian Northwest" and the possibilities of that undeveloped Empire. Sir Herbert Maxwell's paper on "Personal Names" is full of curious and suggestive learning on an interesting subject. The essay on Horace the great Augustan poet is a fine one. Mr Marion Crawford, a leading novelist, is made the topic of an appreciative study by Miss Harriet Robinson. Those interested in physical studies will enjoy Mr Frank Podmore's "In Defense of Phantasms." Mr W J Black writes on "The Style is the Man, J H Wightman, one of the survivors on the Charge of the Six Hundred at Balaclava; Mr. Poultney Bigelow, a schoolmate of the young German Kaiser, attacks Prince Bismark; Mr Mayo W. Hazeltine's "Studies of New York Society" makes interesting reading; and "Friendship of Baldwin;" "Vignettes in Spain;" "Big Bells," and "The Conquest of Dona Jacoba" are interesting and will please the reader.

Not so Unanimous for Carr.

OXFORD, N. C.,—The political aspect in this section of the Old North State is not at all pleasant for the nominee of the Raleigh Convention, as it is claimed by many leading Democrats that the platform of the convention is not the sentiment of the party at large and the knife will be used freely at the polls to defeat Carr.

Demagogue Lucas,

Washington Progress,

We learn while in Hyde last week that Mr W. H. Lucas was not even a delegate to the county convention from his precinct, and that he was not allowed a voice in the convention and was not made a delegate to the State convention, This seems like his own people are against him, and that the Chief Shelt Fish Commissioner has lost his grip upon the people of his own county, as he receives nothing but cold coffee at their hands.

Guaranteed Cure.

We authorize our advertised druggist to sell Dr King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, upon this condition. We could not make this offer did we not know that Dr King's New Discovery could be relied on. It never disappoints. Trial bottles free at Alex Wadsworth's drug store? Large bottles 50c and $1.

A good many farmers say the Democratic harness does not fit them as well as it did. After the blind bridle is put on though, the bosses will buckle up or let out the straps to suit. Farmers have grown some and the harness is tight. It will be made to fit again before the election and there will be a kicking strap provided too if necessary. Democrats will be around in good time patting them on the back, running them down, talking sweet to them and fitting up the harness for the election race. The farmers will put on the blinds themselves then and all will be lovely—may be.

Bowed 'em Out.

Charlotte Observer.

The State Convention did not go much on precedents. It bowed out of office a Governor who by usage was entitled to be nominated, an Auditor who has served but one term, whereas the usage is that State officers are to have two, and re-nominated by acclamation the State Treasurer for a third term

How's Your Liver?

Is the Oriental salutation, knowing that good health cannot exist without a healthy Liver. When the Liver is torpid the Bowels are sluggish and constipated, the food lies in the stomach undigested, poisoning the blood; frequent headache ensues; a feeling of lassitude, despondency and nervousness indicate how the whole system is deranged. Simmons Liver Regulator has been the means of restoring more people to health and happiness by giving them a healthy Liver than any agency known on earth. It acts with extraordinary power and efficacy.

NEVER BEEN DISAPPOINTED,

As a general family remedy for dyspepsia Torpid Liver, Constipation, etc., I hardly ever use anything else, and have never been disappointed in the effect produced; it seems to be almost a perfect cure for all diseases of the Stomach and Bowels.

The North Carolinian.

Wednesday, June 1, 1892.

☞ The 1st day of June.

☞ Our truckers are shipping potatoes.

☞ The crops in this section promise well.

☞ The boy who earns and learns to keep money seldom ever cultivates bad habits.

☞ The Nags Head Hotel will be managed this year by Mr George Gatling of Norfolk

☞ The population of Elizabeth City is now close on to 6,000, and property is all the while enhancing in value.

☞ "Has Col Harry Skinner really left us?" is the question agitating the Democratic bosses just now. Whether he will "skin for them no more" is to be decided by himself.

☞ A metropolitan cotemporary takes occasion to say that May is generally supposed to mean well in spite of her waywardness But this year her antics have produced a general conviction that she needs to be sent to a reform school.

☞ Two very intelligent ladies, Mrs. R. R. Cotton and Mrs G W. Kidder, appointed to work in behalf of North Carolina at the World's Fair, spent several days here last week inquiring for relics of interest. They left for Roanoke Island with the same object in view.

☞ To the question, "Does National Bank Director E. F. Lamb, Chairman of the Democratic County Executive Committee, endorse and stand on the platform of the Democratic State Convention, which demands the abolition of National Banks?" the CAROLINIAN isn't able to say It's a poser.

☞ The reply of the CAROLINIAN to to "A Young Voter" is: It has been the policy of the Republican party to develop to the fullest extent the natural resources of this country, to furnish to every dependent citizen desirable and remunerative employment and to so protect and reward his labor that he can enjoy the fullest possibilities of American citizenship.

☞ On Monday evening, a colored woman, working for Mr. Sandersoh on the Western suburbs of the city, on going along the old Pritchard road on her way home was attacked by a monster wild cat which came out of the woods. She sprang over the fence and defended herself until her screams brought her aid.

☞ To "A Friend" the CAROLINIAN has this to say; Why shouldn't any of us be glad if only the present be bright, no matter what the past has been or the future may be? It is in the present that we live and we may, in a large sense, live twice if we make our present so agreeable and happy that when it becomes the past we call it back to our minds and carry it along with us all the way.

☞ On the completion and occupancy of the new Baptist Church here the old edifice was sold, taken down and removed to Cartwright's School House and again put up, remodeled and neatly fitted, for public worship, and named "Corinth Baptist Church." It was dedicated on Sunday, the sermon being preached by Rev. Dr Hall of Raleigh. There was a large concourse of people in attendance.

☞ The following are the names of the students at the Elizabeth City Academy on the Roll of Honor for the last quarter:

Misses Maggie Bell, Sue Davis, Lizzie Sawyer, Lula Pritchard, Effie Sawyer, Estelle Simpson, Lelia Hood, Sallie Jennings, Kate Engle, May Wood, and Messrs. Jas. Hollowell, Dick Lamb, Vernon Blades, Lloyd Sheep, M. Mansfield, J. C. Spence, R. P. Jenkins, T. J. Creekmore and J. W. Stewart.

☞ That the Bourbon Democrats have great contempt for the Alliance movement goes without saying. They sneer at them and assert that those engaged in it are political dyspeptics who have mistaken the regurgitations of a sour stomach for the birth of a great purpose, and they predict that the most of them before November will come in out of the wet under the sheltering Democratic umbrella. That every sort of influence and pressure will be brought to bear to encompass this is certain, and, possibly, it may succeed, especially with those not brave enough to maintain their position. How many will hold out and prove the courage of their convictions time will show.

☞ The CAROLINIAN will continue to agitate the question of better public roads. Some writer has made the statement that "a method by which to judge the height of a country's civilization is by its public roads." While this may contain some possible paralogism, yet within these few words the author draws not altogether from sophistry. The general condition of the public roads make an impression, favorable or otherwise, as the case may be, on visitors to every country. Here, in Eastern Carolina, where we could have good roads, a great mistake is made in so much neglecting them.

—It is the opinion of a great many truckers that potatoes shipped in barrels made especially for the purpose sell for better prices than those shipped in second hand barrels, and the place to get standard Potato Barrels is at Jones & Co's Factory on Pennsylvania Ave., where they are making both Virginia Ventilated Truck Barrels and Kerr's Patent Wire Barrels. Send in your orders now and insure prompt delivery.

☞ Try experiments in a small way, but let the other fellow go into heavy speculation.

—— Fowler & Co mean business ALL THE TIME and propose to merit your patronage.

☞ Among the best things, after all, in this world are its friendships and its opportunities.

——2800 pair elastic suspenders at 10 cents per pair at Fowler & Co.

——WANTED. 20,000 ladies to look at the large assortment of white and black summer dress goods at Fowler & Co's. New styles, reasonable prices.

☞ To succeed in life a man wants something better than a motive. He wants an object.

—— If you are in want of any Crockery or Glassware Robinson & Co's is the place to get it,

☞ The CAROLINIAN wants the news from every one of the surrounding counties. Send in every item of interest and it will be published.

——A bargain for the ladies in white pearl buttons at Fowler & Co's.

☞ Past grief, old angers and revenges, constantly dwelt upon, make a sepulchre of the soul, a cemetery of the body and a weather-beaten monument of the face.

——Ice Cream Freezers, all sizes at Robinson Co's.

—— LARGEST STORE, LARGEST STOCK, Lowest prices in Eastern North Carolina at Fowler & Co's.

☞ To the questions of "A Young Reader" the CAROLINIAN replies: The last National Republican Convention met at Chicago on June 19, 1888, and General Harrison was nominated on the 25th, on the 5th ballot.

——A newly repaired Store now occupied by J. Y. Old & Son for rent or lease, apply to Robinson & Co.

——No. 1 Timothy and Clover Hay at Robinson & Co.

☞ The following "personal" is taken from the Norfolk Landmark:

Mrs. Violet Davis is in Bayboro, Pamlico county, N. C., visiting her mother, that she had not seen nor heard from in 30 years. She did not know that her mother was living. Many thanks to F. F. Cahoon, of Elizabeth City, N. C., that gave her the information that her mother was living in Bayboro.

——California Peaches, Apricots, white and black Cherries, Green Gage & Honey, French Soups, French Peas, Imported Pickles, Roast Turkey, Roast Chicken, Lunch Tongue, Chipped Beef, Potted Meats, &c. at Robinson & Co.

——There are about 10,000 people in Pasquotank county, and if every one was to buy a pair of shoes the same day at Fowler & Co's store, there would still be some left for the oher counties.

LOCAL MENTION

With this issue the CAROLINIAN begins its 24th year.—Mayor W. C. Glover was the first shipper of new Irish potatoes this season.—On Wednesday night at the home of the brides' parents in the First Ward, Mr. William Owens was married to Miss Emma Savills. Justice Culpepper officiated.—The side walls of the Presbyterian Church have been neatly papered and the wood work painted. Mahlon Sedgwick did the work.—Mr. Isaac Salomonsky, late with Mr. Selig, has left to accept a position in the engraving department of Chapman & Jakeman's jewelry store at Norfolk.—"You should't swear," said a good deacon to an irate Fourth Ward boy the other day. "It is wicked, and nobody ought to do it." "Well, I know where it is allowed and not objected to," was the rejoinder. "Where?" "Why in Court," The deacon passed on.—The Spring poet, not being able to get in his stock of poetry this season, expresses himself thusly:

Both Winter and Summer formed a "ring"
Of that there can't be any doubt.
And by this act the much talked of spring
Was most certainly "frozen out."

—Work on Mr. Aydlett's new residence on the corner of Main and Pool streets has begun.—In these days of house cleaning a moth in the hand is worth two in the carpet.—The finest samples of big potatoes we have seen were laid on our table the other day by Mr. C. C. Eves of Salem —The center of gravity is the only thing that keeps some high minded people on the earth.—The canning factory of Taylor & Co are now operating on green peas. About 200 hands are employed.—The laboring men of Elizabeth City, including the mechanics, are organizing an association for mutual benefit and self-protection.—Marrying without love is like building without mortar. —It will be amusing to see the political crow certain politicians hereabout will eat between now and the election. The CAROLINIAN don't envy them the bad taste that will be left in their mouths.—The new house of Mr. F. M. Grice opposite the CAROLINIAN Building is a very attractive one and is much admired.—Wm. M. Bond esq. of Edenton, called and paid his respects the other day.—"It is said," and what lies are thus fathered every day!—

Help a man out of trouble, and though he'll forget
Your kindness as his trouble is o'er,
If ever again in a hole he should get,
Ah! then he will think of you kindly once more.

—Mr. R. O Preyer is building 17 tenement houses on the White place recently purchased near the Northeast boundary of the City. Mr. Preyey is a man of push and enterprise. —Mr. G. M. Scott having resigned as President of the Electric Light Company, the position is now filled by Vice-President J. B. Flora.—It is a lamentable fact that pride often wears patent leather shoes and begs its tobacco.—E. F. Aydlett esq left on Saturday to attend the annual meeting of the Board of Trustees, of which he is a member, of the Chowan Baptist Female Institute at Murfreesboro.—The more some people say the less they remember.—The CAROLINIAN aims to be a paper for the HOME, and where taken the family love to read it.—In local politics our friends, the enemy, continue to be ""muchly" unharmonious.

"You bolted" "and so did you,"
Is what each faction say,
What are they going to do?
Both in each other's way.

—The Methodist Quarterly meeting was held here on Saturday. Rev. J. C. Reed occupied the pulpit at the Methodist Church on Sunday.—Griffin Pritchard, a well know character of this town, died very suddenly on Saturday night. He had been a long-time sufferer from fistulo and other diseases. He was about 62 years of age.—A. J. Ferebee, of Shawboro, called on Monday. He gave a favorable report of the growing crops in his locality.—The young man is not troubled with defective vision when a rival lingers in the presence of his adorable one.—How lovely the magnolias now appear.—C. H. Lane esq. of the Patent Office, Washington, D. C., gave us a call on Monday. He states that his ancestors left this county some 70 years ago.—

The country boys now demand a say
And it looks as if they'd have their way.

Why not?—At the Y. M. C. A. rooms Monday night the subject debated was: "Is War justifiable under any Circumstance?" and was engaged in by Messrs Vowles and Overman in the affirmative and Mr Ward and Rev. Dr. Johnson in the negative and was decided in favor of the negative.—Contractor E. W. Dozier is making active progress on Mr. J. L. Sawyer's new house on West Main street. When completed it will be an ornamental addition to that locality.—The CAROLINIAN Job press is kept busy. Mr. Simons' work gives universal satisfaction.—Miss Kate Grandy, who has been spending some time at Washington, has returned home.—Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Preyer left yesterday on a visit to their former home at Cleveland, Ohio.—"Memorial Day" was observed here by Fletcher Post, G. A. R. with appropriate ceremonies. —Miss Etta Jones, of Moyock, is visiting Miss Annie Spence on South Road street.—The Pasquotank Rifles' Bazar opened at the Armory last night and the programme was intensely interesting. It will continue to-night and to-morrow night. Let it be liberally patronized.—A Water Street man asked, "Why is a prisoner like a charm?" The answer was, "Because he is at the end of a chain"—A bunch of onions, measuring 3½ inches in diameter, has been laid on our table by Prof. Rooks Turner.—Z. R. Daniels esq, of Wanchese, Dare county, dropped in yesterday and paid his respects.—The schooner "Southern Cross" is on Pailin's Ways for repairs.—Mr. L. N. Midgett of Manteo gave this office a pleasant call yesterday.—G. W. Ward esq., goes to Belvidere on Friday where, at night, he delivers an address at the Academy.—Wedding bells will merrily ring to-day.

Prejudice and ignorance have given way to Simmons Liver Regulator. It has stood the test.

The Washington Gazette gives the following statement relative to the R. D. McCotter murder in Pamlico Co. It appears that a woman was cooking for McCotter and a man by the name of Clark desired to marry her. McCotter prevented and was afterwards shot from ambush. The woman says the plan was for Clark to kill McCotter and two other men, and then they were to marry and leave. Clark has been arrested and a true bill found.

CONSUMPTION CURED.

AN old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary, the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bonchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this recipe, in German, French or English with full directions for preparing and using. Send by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, W. A. NOYES, 820 Powers Block, Rochester, N. Y.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report.

Royal Baking Powder
ABSOLUTELY PURE

A few weeks ago according to the Gastonia Gazette, Jack White's boys brought home two flying squirrels. Mrs White directed the boys to give them to the cat. It so happened that the cat had a nest of little kittens. The boys put the squirrels in the nest with the kittens and they are with them yet. The squirrels boarded right along with the kittens in peace and unity, the old cat concurring.

A Leader.

Since its first introduction Electric Bitters has gained rapidly in popular favor until now it is clearly in the lead among pure medicinal tonics and alteratives—containing nothing which permits its use as a beverage or intoxicant, it is recognized as the best and purest medicine for all ailments of Stomach, Liver and Kidneys. It will cure sick headache, indigestion, constipation and drive malaria from the system. Satisfaction guaranteed with each bottle or the money will be refunded. Price only 50c per bottle at Alex Wadsworth's drug store.

Northern people are trying the experiment of supplanting Irish labor by negro labor in railroad building. A contractor at Bloomfield, New York, sent an agent down here a few days ago to gather up 425 able bodied negroes, and the agent got them—150 at Charlotte, 150 at Salisbury and 125 at Asheville.

$21. The Tyler Desk Co., of St Louis, Mo., have just thrown on the market an elegant Standard Antique Oak, 4 ft. 6 in. Roll Curtain Desk, complete in every detail, C. O. D. St Louis, for $21. WORLD'S FAIR NOTES.

THE Baltimore and Ohio Railroad is having an elaorate display made for the Exposition.

INSURANCE aggregating more than $3,000,000 is now carried on the World's Fair buildings.

CHILE will be represented at the Fair, regardless of the fact that its Government made no appropriation.

AN association has been formed in Germany to organize excursion parties to visit the World's Fair and incidentally Niagara Falls, and a number of the larger cities.

MANY relics of the Cabots, the early English voyagers to America, will be exhited at the Exposition by a committee formed for that purpose in Bristol, England, where the Cabots lived.

A PROJECT is being perfected at Melbourne, Australia, whereby a large party of artisans of various crafts may be enabled to visit the Exposition at Chicago for study and pleasure combined.

GENERAL J. H. BRINKER, one of the alternate National Commissioners from Mississippi, has in his possession, and will exhibit at the Exposition, five bales of cotton that was raised by slave labor in 1862-3.

THE $60,000 World's Fair appropriation which Greece has made will be devoted in large part to the preparation for exhibit of reproductions in cast of the many famous specimens of ancient Greek art, now owned by the Government.

AT the special request of the Empress of Germany the Princess Frederick Karl, aunt of the Emperor, has accepted the presidency of the women's commission, which will cooperate with the Board of Lady Managers in promoting the women's exhibit at the Fair.

A GLASS punch bowl, made by the glassblowers of Cork in 1825, and presented to Daniel O'Connell, the famous Irish patriot, will appear in U's exhibit from Cork. One side of the bowl bears O'Connell's initials and the other a representation of Cork, as it then existed.

VISITORS to the Exposition will be able to go comfortably and expeditiously from one part of the grounds to another and obtain advantageous views of the buildings. They may do this either in electric boats through the lagoons, or by the intramural elevated electric railway.

THE Illinois Woman's Exposition Board contemplates a novel exhibit as part of its work, in the form of a model home. The idea is to show the ideal conditions that should surround a woman's life in the household and demonstrate the facilities that can be provided at a moderate cost.

GREAT BRITAIN'S building at the Exposition will be a typical specimen of a picturesque, half-timbered English home of the time of Henry VIII., or about the period with the World's Fair will commemorate. It will be ninety feet square, two stories high, [illegible] of red brick, nearly timber and yellow terra cotta, with red tiling for the roof.

A $50,000 monument to Columbus, designed by Sculptor Howard Kretschmar, of Chicago, will be erected in Lake Front Park, which has been termed the "Gateway to the Exposition." It will be a statue in bronze twenty feet high, surmounting a granite pedestal thirty feet high. The monument will form the design for souvenirs of the Exposition.

THE New York World's Fair Board has visited Chicago, inspected the Exposition grounds and buildings, and inquired carefully into the progress of the work of preparation for the great fair. The members of the board expressed their astonishment and enthusiasm over the magnificent buildings, and the vast amount of work that has been accomplished.

IN the women's exhibit from South Dakota will be a life size statue of a Sioux Indian maiden. The subject was Minnehaha, the eighteen year old daughter of Sitting Bear, who was prominent in the engagement with General Custer's troops on the Little Big Horn. Minnehaha fell in love a Lieutenant in the United States Army at Fort Sully and died of a broken heart.

DR. N. G. BLALOCK, President of the Washington State World's Fair Board, announces that there will be celebrated at the Washington building a "watermelon day." He has set aside 100 acres to be devoted entirely to the raising of these melons, and he promises to take a train load or them to the Fair and give them away with the purpose of convincing people that as a water-melon growing State Washington stands first.

THE Exposition proably will not have an Eiffel tower or anything approximating it in height, except that elevation to which the captive balloons will ascend. There will be, however, three observation towers about 300 feet high for the accommodation of visitors who want to take a bird's-eye view of the grounds and buildings. These towers will be of elaborate design and beautiful in appearance, and will cost about $200,000 each.

THAT TIRED FEELING

Prevails with its most enervating and discouraging effect in spring and early summer, when the days grow warmer and the toning effect of the cold air is gone. They, with two others, were conveying a chest of gunpowder to the camp fiwng grounds, and on the way stopped to rest, sitting down on the chest. Without thinking of the powder they began smoking cigarettes, and almost immediately the explosion occurred.

DYNAMITERS IN SPAIN.

Nineteen Persons Blown Up in an Explosion at Goldocano.

An explosion took place in a dynamite factory at Goldocano, Spain, causing the death of sixteen men and three women. The report of the explosion was heard a distance of twelve miles.

The scenes witnessed when the families of the workmen were assembled on the spot were heartrending. One woman, seeking her husband, found only his head, while another found the corpse of her husband with the head blown off at a great distance from the factory. The explosion was caused by two small boxes of nitro glycerine.

Two workmen were discharged from the factory for insubordination. They threatened revenge, and the superintendent saw them running away from the back of the smaller of the two buildings, in which a large quantity of nitro glycerine was stored. A few seconds later there was a terrific report, both buildings were lifted about forty feet into the air and then went to splinters. All the people in the immediate neighborhood were stunned by the shock. In Bilboa, five miles away, the ground trembled as if shaken by an earthquake, and the people ran into the streets in a panic.

The scene of destruction is appalling. For hundreds of yards round the factory only ruins are left. Splinters of the ruined factory covered the ground, but not a piece of board or beam as large as a man's arm could be found. Trees were split down the trunks, outbuildings were laid flat and not a chimney was left standing within a radius of a mile and a half.

MURDEROUS BANDITS.

Train Robbers Kill a Messenger and Wound an Assistant.

Train robbery was attempted at half-past one o'clock the other morning on the Jacksonville, Tampa and Key West Railroad, near Munro Junction, four miles north of Sandford, Fla. The West India fast mail, carrying two express cars, the United States mail car, and several passenger coaches was boarded by four men, and when the train was running at about five miles an hour two of the men crept upon the engine. Pointing revolvers at the heads of Engineer Dumas and his fireman, they told them to obey such orders as might be given to them.

The two other robbers entered the express cars, which were occupied by Messenger W. N. Saunders and Special Agent I. M. Cox, and attempted to overpower them. The expressmen, although taken by surprise, made a desperate resistance, and the robbers then deliberately shot down Saunders, two bullets taking effect in his breast and killing him instantly.

Cox had his man at bay and was about to subdue him when the robber who had killed Saunders pointed his revolver at Cox and fired twice. One ball hit Cox in the arm and the other grazed his face and tore out his left eye.

All the desperadoes then hurriedly jumped from the train and fled to the woods, which are very dense in that section.

LYNCH law has been established in Tangiers, Algeria, the innovation having been introduced through the lack of judges and gendarmes. Eight Arabs have been lynched.

THE warm suns are starting the usual snow slides and avalanches in the Cascade and Olympic Mountains, in Washington.

THE sugar trust has adopted the plan which the whisky trust has found so effective, of giving heavy rebates to grocers who buy of it alone and observe the laws for the "regulation" of trade as laid down by it. The methods of monopoly have become an exact science.

THE NATIONAL GAME.

LOUISVILLE leads in team fielding.

KING eclipses Rusie as New York's star pitcher.

KELLY is playing superb ball behind the bat for Boston.

BROOKLYN'S pitchers are the surprise of the baseball year.

PRESIDENT DIAZ has appointed Senor Matias Romero, the present Minister to the United States, Minister of Finance. No successor to Senor Romero as Minister to the United States will be appointed at present.

BROOKLYN leads the League in team batting and base running.

THREE consecutive games without an error is Cleveland's record.

NO team in the League has been playing better ball than the Baltimores for the past two weeks.

BROUTHERS, of the Brooklyns, is simply killing the ball this year. He is the hardest hitter in the League.

RUSIE has actually become New York's losing pitcher. More than speed is needed by pitchers this season.

CLEVELAND and Washington are to the front with the cleanest game of the season—not an error by either team.

THE policy of bringing in the infielders when a man is on third base and another on first in the long run doesn't pay.

THIS is proving a great season for left-handers. They are more successful than any pitchers that go in the box.

LOWE, Duffy and McCarthy, of the Bostons, are the greatest outfielders in the country. They form a trio that cannot be beaten.

THERE were never so many errorless games played in any season in the same time. The game has surely got to be a science.

ONE thing is certain. So many games with such close scores never characterized the League season so early before. Is it possible that the ball is too dead?

THERE is no pitcher in the country to compare with Kilroy, of Washington, in keeping close vigil on base runners, except possibly Galvin of Pittsburg.

THOMAS BURNS, the last of the old Chicago White Stockings except Anson, has accepted the offer to manage the Pittsburg team. He will get a salary of $4000

IT has been computed by the process of permutations and combinations that there are 478,991,600 distinct ways in which the National League of twelve baseball clubs can finish the season.

THE report that Pitcher Clarkson is to be released by the Boston club is authoritatively denied, but it is understood that he is to chiefly figure on the bench and at the turnstile during the remainder of the season.

NEARLY all of the younger members of Congress are enthusiastic admirers of the National Game, and this liking for the sport is shared by a number of the Senators and by several of the cabinet officers, particularly by Secretaries Foster and Rusk.

THAT is a very handsome memorial which will commemorate at Princeton the heroism of young Brokaw, the ball player who sacrificed his life last summer to save a drowning girl at Long Branch. In addition to the fund subscribed by friends, $25,000 has been given by the young man's father to be used to procure for Princeton the finest recreation grounds in the country.

A LITTLE trick that Ward played in Louisville prevented Taylor from being credited with a stolen base, is still being laughed over by the Brooklyn players. Taylor had made a double, and was moving toward third when Kinslow threw down to catch him napping. The ball went wild, but Ward clapped his hands together and touched Taylor, on the back as he slid over the bag. Before the Louisville player knew what had occurred the ball was fielded and Taylor could not reach third base.

WAGES OF FARM LABORERS.

The Department of Agriculture Issues a Report on That Subject.

Secretary Rusk has published a report on the wages of farm labor in the United States. The tables show that in 1866, monthly farm wages, without board, were as follows: In Eastern States, $39.31; Middle States, $29.87; Southern States, $16.63; Western States, $27.84; Mountain States, $27.23; Pacific States, $44.61, the average being $26.87. Wages were lowest in 1879, when the average was $16.05. Since then they have slowly increased year by year, until at present they are: In the Eastern States, $26.46; Middle States, $23.33; Southern States, $14.83; Western, $23.61; Mountain, $32.16; Pacific, $39.15. The average per month for the whole year being $18.60.

The report says that "A careful analysis of all the data collected concerning farm wages from 1840 to 1865, in comparison with results of the more recent investigations, will show that in fifty years the compensation of farm laborers has very nearly doubled."

"EVERY WORD TRUE!"

He Says the Writer of That Famous Letter.

HE REITERATES HIS STATEMENTS, PRODUCES ADDITIONAL PROOF AND CLEARLY DEFINES HIS POSITION.

(N. Y. Sun.)

It would be difficult to measure the interest and comment, not to say excitement, which the published letter of Dr. R. A. Gunn, which appeared in the paper yesterday, has occasioned. The prominence of the doctor and the unusual nature of the letter have both tended to add interest to the subject and make it really the talk of the town.
